

A&R Aviation Services, Inc. Warranty Statement

A&R Aviation Services warrants that all items overhauled or repaired will be free from defects in workmanship, materials replaced and all items conform to the applicable overhaul manuals and specifications of the manufacturer.

All units repaired/overhauled by A&R Aviation Services will be covered by warranty from the date of completion for the period in months or hours specified in the table below, whichever occurs first.

If an item fails to comply in any respect, except abuse, misuse or abnormal wear and tear with the warranty set forth above, A&R Aviation Services shall promptly make repairs, corrections and replacements necessary to insure such items comply in all respects with said warranty, the labor being at A&R Aviation Services' expense, at A&R Aviation Services' facility. Warranty claim determination will be reasonably made based upon historical work orders, functional tests, findings during inspection and failure analysis. Consequential damages are specifically excluded from the terms of this warranty. This warranty does not apply to abnormal wear of items, nor does it apply to normal wear and tear of such items during normal operation unless such wear can be directly related to a defect in the workmanship.

The following condition will result in immediate warranty denial; unit received disassembled, broken, inspections seals removed or unit received with signs of external damage as a result of mishandling or misuse. In addition a repair sent to another repair facility will be automatically denied.
